

THE PATIENT- RISK MARKER FOR MEDICAL EMERGENCIES IN THE DENTAL AND ORAL SURGERY OFFICE

R. FANEA<sup>1</sup> M. VORONEANU<sup>2</sup> C. OROS<sup>2</sup>

Abstract: Systemic vision on the case is clinically essential to understanding the particulars involved in the patient, allowing the detection of potential factors which could cause emergency dental office. Therapeutic attitude must be individualized for each case, linking data obtained through the clinical case history and paraclinical exams, in order to obtain favorable results. Interdisciplinary approach allows the patient's knowledge of systemic pathology associated with the medication followed and particularities that dental treatment involved. Main sources in medical emergencies in dental office are lacunars evaluations of the patients constants, spontaneously neuro - psychical reactions or a lack of special training of the medical staff. Our study was performed on 1680 patients. The level of installed medical emergencies was 3, 85% distributed as come : 38% vaso-vagal sincopa ,35% cardio-vascular emergencies, 11% alergic emergencies, 9% neurologic emergencies,7% other emergencies .

Key words: medical emergencies in dental office, patient systemic risk, dental fear

---

<sup>1</sup>Apollonia Dental Medicine Faculty , Petre Andrei University Iași

<sup>2</sup>Dental Medicine Faculty , U.M.F. „Gr. T. Popa” Iași