

When does the formation of the musical personality begin?

Abstract: Starting from the premise that the musical personality develops gradually, each stage having an integrative character, we consider that the first two stages of the evolution of the individual, prenatal and infantile, have a substantial role in terms of both the formation of the musical personality and its thorough understanding. The family is the first social microsystem in which the individual acquires feelings, skills, knowledge and personality traits. In conclusion, the social environment specific to the first two stages of the evolution of the individual, through its characteristics, has a substantial contribution in shaping the future musical personality, an aspect that confirms, without any possibility of denial, the importance of the quality of the educational process, informal or non-formal, ensured in this stage, especially by the family.

Key-words: family, environment, education, hearing, reactive listening, psycho-auditory settings, musical personality
